

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

Methods of sensing the programmed state of a floating-gate memory cell utilize a reference current applied to an input node of a sensing device during sensing, thus compensating for residual current and improving immunity to erroneous indications of an erased state.